

ABSTRACT

Disclosed is a method for operating a vehicle brake system having a vacuum brake booster for generating an auxiliary force. An approach to a point where the auxiliary-force to actuating-force ratio falls below a predetermined ratio is detected, and a nominal pressure is generated before the above ratio falls below the predetermined ratio.